WE OWE A FEW BILLS IN EUROPE AND OUR CREDITORS ARE GREEDY.

Perciga Bankers Feel & Little Timid After the Baring Crash and Wish to Restore Credits Generally by Increasing Their Stock of Gold-We Can Spare the Specie Better Than Any Other Nation, but We Look at It Simply as a Loan,

Wall street, which is essentially a senti-mental community, has of late become somewhat disturbed because this country is paying its commercial obligations to England, Ger-many, and France, and incidentally, but on a smaller scale, to other foreign countries. As a rule, we settle our heaviest foreign trade balanced in the spring. On the other hand, when the balance is in our favor it is settled in the fall. The reason for this is that the balance in our favor results invariably from heavy exports of cotton, breadstuffs, and provisions. which are made as the crops are harvested, and which are drawn against as fast as they are shipped. In the spring our exports of reducts are light, but we keep on buying asaries and luxuries from all foreign ountries, and much of them on time.

For example, importers bought last fall, in topation of the higher schedules of the McKinley bill, larger amounts of merchandise then they ordinarily would have taken. They were encouraged to do so by the manufacturers and producers in Europe who gave them longer credits than usual, as it was manifestly to the advantage of both to get all of certain classes of goods into this country that they could before the rates of duty upon them were Another factor in the monetary situation at the moment is the large imports of sugar, that commodity having been held back until after April 1: also to take advantage of the new tariff law. Payments abroad on account of raw sugars must be enormous this spring, for the stock of sugar in this country was allowed to run very low in anticipation of the placing of sugar upon the iree list, while at the same time the American Sugar Refineries Company made enormous purchases of raw material throughout the winter months for which it must now pay as it is receiving the sugar. These operations alone, which very few people seem to have thought of, would account for recent beavy remittances to Germany. As we have not been sending Germany any large amount of our products we have to pay for our sugar with gold.

The amount of specie that has been sent to Frauce this spring has not been large, and that too represents a trade balance in which food delicacies, silks, and other luxuries figure largely. The more recent shipments of gold are to London. These do not require much explanation when one considers the vast amount of American securities which London old in this market last fall, and even into the winter, in consequence of the troubles growing out of the embarrasament of the Barings.

ing out of the embarrassment of the Barings. Remittances were not made at once against those sales, for in many cases it was desirable to have the proceeds in this city. Another factor in the situation is the amount of foreign capital constantly varying in amount, which is left in this city to take advantage of the loan market pending its investment.

With a view of ascertaining the exact financial situation ab oad and the relations of this country to it. The SUN asked many leading foreign bankers yesterday to state exactly what is taking place between this country and the financial centres of Europe. Unfortunately many of them are rejuctant to be quoted, but all age ethat the operations now taking place, which so far this year have involved not shipments of about $23,000,000 of gold, are in the main normal.

The position is not strictly that at a certain price for exchange gold will be shipped, but that gold has to go whenever importers, in settling their debts abroad, exhaust the supply of mercantille bills, and a new supply of bills has to be made or created for them against the gold shipments. Whenever the large demand for importers of cones, rubier, &., ceases, shipper-less of cones, rubier, &., ceases, shipper-less of the bank sau that the shipments were in part due, to the heavy importsitoes last fail prior to the time when the McKinley law went into operation. Most of the remittances of gold, it was ad-ed, have been to the Continent. It was believed that some of the New York bankers had an understanding with the Bank of France by which some profit was made out of the transactions. As a matter of exchange there was no orefit in the shipments especially to the English financial centres. But whatever the facts a loud that might be it was included that when the United States begins to ship cotton and grain the rate of exchange will go down and the shipments of gold will stou. THE MISSION OF A VICE-PRESIDENT OF CHRIST'S FOLLOWERS.

He Takes Mr. Gould's Physician, Dr. Munt Into His Confidence, and Offers to Compromise for 960,000 Cash-He Does Not Mind Being Arrested, and Tells Police Inspector Byrnes All About It.

A tall man of 35 walked up the steps of Dr.

street, on Monday evening last and asked for Dixon of Pueblo, Colorado, and with it a note of introduction to Dr. Munn signed by a physician in that town with whom Dr. Munn was personally sequainted. Dr. Munn found his visitor a well-dressed, intelligent looking man. Dixon introduced himself at once as a representative of the "Order of Christ's Followers. and before he had talked two minutes Dr Dr. Munn thought best to humor his visitor and allowed him to talk on about his mission to New York, which was to kill Jay Gould in ease he refused to hand over several millions to the order of Christ's Pollowers. Dr. Muno is the family physician of Jay Gould and accompanies him upon all his trips through the thought it proper to break the news of Mr. Gould's impending fate to Dr. Munn first. Dixon carefully explained to Dr. Munn that he was Vice-President No. 71 of the order, and Council of the organization signed "Adonia:" "Jay Gould has been tried and convicted and forgiven by the Arch Council. The last Vice-President is instructed to execute the orders of the Council if he doesn't comply."

After impressively reading this to Dr. Muan, "Now, Mr. Gould must pay me $5,000,000 at once on behalf of the order which I represent. In the next ten years he must agree to pay us ers will distribute. Mr. Gould must not give to his heirs more than a million aplece, and he must stipulate to bequeath the rest for charitable uses. must stipulate to bequeath the rest for charitable uses. These are the orders of the Arch Council, and if Mr. Gould does not obey them it is my duty to kill him. It is the mission of our order to equalize and disseminate money and property over the country."

Dixon watched the effect of bis words on Dr. Munn and then said in a lower volce;

"But i think I can arrange to let Mr. Gould off more reasonably than that. Now, if he will give me $60,000 cash down, and agree to leave a querter of a million or so for the good of mankind, I think I can fix matters with our order. I will arrange to save his life if he wants to accept my proposition."

The man from Colorado leaned back in his chair to await Dr. Munn's reply. The Doctor told Dixon that Mr. Gould would undoubtedly be neriectly ready to divide, but he suggested that Dixon come again the fact; night to arrange matters. Dixon promised to call and bowed himself out.

When Dr. Munn was rid of his uncomfortable visitor he hurried down to Jay Gould's house in Fifth avenue and told him what had happened. As the result inspector Byrnes got a telephone message from the railroad magnate on Tuesday moraing asking him to call at Mr. Gould office in the Western union building. There he met Dr. Munn's house, and early in the exercised with them that Dixon was too dangerous a lunatic to e at large. Through these openings two faces may be seen and, looking at them, you would say that the two-the man and the woman might be brother and sister. Each seems to have been about 30 years old. Each has black hair that same way. Both have high cheek bones and olive skins. The poses are straight and thin and the lips well curved in much the same way. If the heads were not turned a little, you would see that in the man's right temple there is little dark hole, and above it a circle of blue. there are two such spots with bluish circles

The man and woman were brought to the undertaker's early yesterday morning. All night long they had lain side by side in the men's dressing room at the rear end of the Excelsior Concert Hall. 207 Bowery, the murdered and the murderer who had killed himself-Ida Brevoort, concert hall singer, and Charles S. Wilbur. The murderer was dressed in a dark coat and waistcoat and dark trousers. The woman wore a short, pale pink satin dress. Her neck and arms were bare. There was a big bow of pale blue ribbon at her waist. Her black stockings with the white stripes were visible to the knees, for the gown was short. On her feet were small gilt slippers, held tightly in her left hand a bunch of red roses, for so quickly had death come that she did not drop the roses she held in her hand when she came off the stage.

Just a few hours before the young woman had danced on the stage and her lips had smiled as she saug. "For money, not kisses wins love." When she left the stage, the man who had been staring at her from the back of the hall rose and pushed open the door at the side and entered while the beer glasses were still raitling applause. She took him into the men's dressing room. Two of the others were behind the curtain which stretched across the middle of the room. They heard no sound of conversation. There were three sharp cracks, two together, a little pause, then a third. When the curtain was thrown back the man and the woman sat in nearly opposite corners of the room, failen half out of the chairs. There was blood on the bare neck of the woman, trickling down to hide under the edge of her gown. The man was dead also. He had shot well—two bullets for the woman and one for himself. They found a barke with the monogram "O.S. W". a end with the name of "Davennort" and also of "F. Lewis. Buffalo." There was a bottle of poison in one of Wilbur's pockets. Proprietor Buttner said. These and a little money and jeweiry were all. Although the name was published in the newspapers yesterday morning, no one has come forward to tell who the man was. The dead woman had two staters, Alice Ingalls, married to a travelling man, and a younger sister whose name is not known. The three sisters lived together in the second story of 1.307 Broadway. The dead woman was married eight years ago to a saloon keeper in Dallas. Texas, and the one child they had, now 7 years old, lives with the elisters, Mrs. Ingalls refused to give the name of the husband, but the little boy says his own name is James Thomas Washington Durham. The dead woman had not been to Texas to see her husband for two years, but Mrs. Ingalls says that she and he were on good terms, and that he sent her money. He was shot in the hand tried to stab her with a sheath knife. Then I begged her to give up the places." Mrs. Ingalls said, "but she has been going down and down until if has come to this. She had no need to have men running after her, for her husband fairly idolized her. proprietor of the Excelsion. Simon Buttner, who has offered to bury both.

The murderer had hands that showed he did not work with them. He was a tough character, as his face shows. The pawn tickets suggest that he was in straits for money, and Ida's song said "Money, not kisses, wins love." Ida Brevoort may not have been as honest as her sister asys, but she was superior to the ordinary Bowery concert hall singer. She never sat in the front of the house and drank. She was quiet, and her face shows that she was not dissipated.

Coroner Hanly took testimony on the case yesterday. William Recardo, a performer at the hall, said that the murdered girl asked him if she might bring a friend into the dreesing room. He said "yee." A moment later he heard three shots, ran into the room from tha stage, and found the singer and a man lying on the floor dead.

Frederick Burke, the waiter who told Miss Brevoort that Wibur wanted to see her, said that she acted as if she was afraid of Wilbur. He had seen them in company often.

Maggie Sherman, a singer at the hall, testified that she was in the dressing room with Miss Brevoort when Burke came in.

"After Burke went away she said to me." said Miss Sherman. "That friend of mine is outside and I don't want to see him. I'm afraid to gn out and sing, for I don't know what he will do to me. I learned afterward that hiss Brevoort had received presents from another man."

While preparing the body of Wilbur for burial the undertaker found in the dead man's underclothes a cartridge which had not been discharged.

An inquest will be held to-morrow afternoon. About midnight on April 22 Albert Stoll. a young bookbinder, ordered a bottle of beer in the raar room of the concert hall 113 Bowery for Kate Dunsworth, a singer at the hall. "Look there." he raid, and as Kate turned he fired, the bullet knocking out seven of the woman's teeth. Then Stoll put a buillet into his temple. The woman recevered. Stoll died yesterday in the Gouveneur Hospital.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 8 .- Last night United States Marshal Gard seized the Chillan steamer Etata, now receiving supplies in the harbor, and placed Capt. Mauzeun under arrest. Telegrams have been passing between this city and the Department at Washington, which brought about the above results. Tugboats have left to seize the schooner Robert and Minnie, which has been hovering around the entrance to the harbor to receive the supplies taken on board the Etata Orders were received from Secretary Blaine to seize the vessel if found within the threemile limit, and Marshal Gard and Collector Berry went out last night in different tugs for that purpose. Up to last night the Etata had received forty head of cattle, twenty-five head of sheep, and 3,000 pounds of dressed meat from the ferryboat Coronado. The vessel has also received other stores, including 800 tons of coal. As soon as all the provisions and fuel were on board she expected to leave the harbor and cruise between here and Catalina to meet the schooner Robert and Minnie and trans'er a part of her cargo.

Burnos Ayres, Mays, —Despatches received here from Chili announce that negotiations looking to a settlement of the civil war are proceeding between President Balmaceila and the leaders of the insurgent or Congressional party.

Unit, May 6.—Four Congress delegates have had an interview with President Balmaceids but there is small hope of the two sides coming to an understanding. The delegates asked Balmaceda to resign, to dismiss his army, to appear in court and justify his conduct, and to allow Congress to prepare for a new Presidential election.

Washington, May 6.—Last Saturday, as the result of an inquiry by telegraph, the Collector of Customs at Wilmington, Cal., was instructed by the Treasury Department to the effect that there appeared no reason for his interference in the prospective transfer of a lot of arms and ammunition from the American schooner Robert and Minnie, then at Catalina Island, to a transport, for shipment to South America, Pending this removal the Chilian Minister here received some advices from Callfornia regarding these munitions of war, with which he called on Secretary Sester on Sunday. On the strength of the Ministers representations, the Secretary sent another telegram to the Collector, the substance of which it is said at the department was to detain the Robert and Minnie. Secretary Foster to-day refused to give out for publication the telegrams that have passed between the department and the Collector, or to say anything on the subject further than that it had been referred to the Attorney-General for an opinion whether it would be a violation of the neutrality laws to allow the transfer of the arms. NEW YORKERS NOT RUNNING THE WAR.

The rumor that the civil war in Chili was being prolonged by W. R. Grace & Co., whose in terests are favorable to the Congress party. and Charles R. Flint & Co., who have supported Balmaceds and the Government, was emphatically denied yesterday by the senior partner of each firm.

These firms have been rivals in the South American trade, and have interests in Chili that are affected by the revolution. Some time ago Flint & Co. sent to Balmaceda two large consignments of arms. In each consignment there were 350 cases of rifles and 750,000 cartridges. These goods were involced as being for Rio de Janeiro "in transit." were sent by the United States and Brazil mail were sent by the United States and Brazil mail steamships Advance and Vigilancid. The goods were transferred at Rio to a steamship bound for Montevideo, where they were transferred to Balmaceda's two new torpedo cruisers, the Almirante Lynch and the Almirante Condei. Then these torpedo boats lought the battle with the Huascar and Blanco Encalada in Chilian watera. It is also said that arms have been purchased in New York for the Congress party and shipped overland to California, Hence arose the rumor that rival commercial interests in New York were responsible for the prolongation of the war.

The Chilian steamer Elata that was selzed, on Tuesday night, while taking on supplies at San Diego, Cal., was formerly one of the fleet of the South American Steam Navigation Company of which W. R. Grace & Co. are the New York agents.

W. H. Grace said yesterday:

"We have now nothing to do with the Etata, which has apparently lallen into the hands of the Congress party. Our tirm is perfectly neutral in this struggle. I have no hesitation in saying that we have received offers from both factions, however."

Mr. Grace said further that he would do nothing about the seizure of the Etata, as it in no way concerned him.

Charles R. Filmt said that as the relations between Chili and the United States were friendly it was as legitimate to sell arms to the Chilian Government as to sell it beer. steamships Advance and Vigilancid. The

He is accompanied in his flight by a woman of the town. Rittle De Long, with whom he has become in attack and on whom it appears he has lavished large sums of money. He leaves a wife, to whom he was married fourteen years ago, and who, until now, has not suspected her husband's infidelity.

The creditors of the fugitive, whose claims are supposed to amount to $40,000, learned today for the first time that Burt was not worth a dollar, despite the show he made. His stores and greenhouses are owned, in lact, by his father, who to-day went through the formality of attaching the property to project himself against personal loss. Burt, until he went into the restaurant, was a steady and saving man. His shop was the lashionable floriat establishment of the city. His escapade is a complete surprise to Syracuse. nodelled after the establishment in the ro-
